Boston Beautiful

In the aftermath of the Boston Marathon bombing, Leigh Ryan '11 sat in her apartment, grappling with a range of emotions. Her Boylston Street office, where Ryan worked for a public relations firm, was closed with all of Boston on lockdown. She wanted to help with the recovery, but the recent college graduate had limited funds. That's when she picked up her paintbrush, and The Boston Project was born. Read more.

New Boston Orange Fund assists local students with unforeseen expenses

SU has always stretched to make education accessible and affordable, but sometimes students face unforeseen expenses that can be the difference between a successful college experience and one that ends prematurely. In response, the Boston Regional Council has established the Boston Orange Fund to assist talented local students with demonstrated needs that fall outside of standard financial aid offerings. SU in Boston welcomes our newest students!

Boston-area students joining SU's freshman class got their first dose of Orange spirit at the New Student Send-Off on July 17. Nearly 150 students and their families gathered at the UMASS Club, where they met fellow classmates while current SU students and parents offered insight about campus life and all things Orange! Meet Carolyn Ebersole '14

"SU is as big as you want to make it," Carolyn Ebersole '14 says, reflecting on advice she received at the beginning of her college career. The Ipswich, Massachusetts, resident came to SU to study aerospace engineering, but when she decided to transfer into the international relations program, the process of switching majors made her truly appreciate SU's size. Now a senior, Ebersole is grateful for SU's variety of options and the guidance she received. Read more.

VPA students named semi-finalists in international design contest

Two industrial and interaction design majors in SU's College of Visual and Performing Arts were named semi-finalists in Design Museum Boston's Street Seats Challenge. Teams designed iconic benches, or "street seats," for the Fort Point Channel in South Boston's Innovation District. "Park Bar," by Ryan Pierson '15 and Sally Zheng '15, was among those chosen by an expert panel for best meeting the criteria of innovation, durability, sustainability, aesthetics, and comfort.
